RE: Ferdinand

First, RE is short for "regarding," and "regarding" means "about," so this is about Ferdinand. Brian wants it noted in this report that he thinks we should not use RE since it's stupid and no one knows what it means, so you have to explain it, which takes up way more time than just saying "regarding" or even "about," but I think it's cool, and it's my report, so it's staying in. I think it's a real time-saver!

Okay, so this is a special report about what we learned about Ferdinand and what we can guess.

Ferdinand was dropped off on Earth by the aliens 5,000 years ago, which is basically prehistoric times. We looked this up on the computer, and there were still mammoths walking around on Earth then!

They gave him a machine to keep them informed on how things are going here on Earth. They were waiting for Earth civilization to get built up with skyscrapers, power plants, kitty litter factories, etc. And when it destroyed itself, they would come back and it would be easy to take over our planet and fix it back up.

So they gave Ferdinand this computer/telephone device, and he kept sending the aliens signals saying the Earth was not destroyed, and they stayed away, waiting.

And wherever he went, whoever he lived with over thousands of years, he always secretly kept this computer thingy hidden nearby so he could send out the signals.

Somehow, we ended up getting him at the shelter, and he made the area under his doghouse the secret headquarters for his machine. He's super good with computers and machines, which will be good to know in the future.

When his machine finally broke and he wasn't able to send in his signals, the aliens thought it was time to come in and take the planet. But the Earth wasn't destroyed, and that's how all the trouble started.

Ferdinand is an alien-built robot, but strangely, he's still pretty much a dog. He can't talk, so he can't tell us about being the pet of Benjamin Franklin or Christopher Columbus, or Attila the Hun, or whatever.

I did an experiment on Ferdinand and tried to look into his mouth to see if I could see any android or robot parts. But I had to abandon the experiment because of excessive DOG BREATH.

By the way, Brian and Violet and I don't know why the aliens were so sure our planet was going to be destroyed, but we are all doing a lot more recycling and we are turning off the lights when we leave a room. We're not taking any chances.
